ANTH 3307A - Field Methods in Archaeology
with Professor Timmins

Application submission: Applications will be considered as they are received on an on-going -- but first come, first served -- basis. The application will remain open throughout course registration until the course becomes full.

Prerequisites: Anthropology 2229F/G, registration in year 3 or 4 of any anthropology module, and permission of the instructor.

Course description:

This course, which runs out of the Museum of Ontario Archaeology, 1600 Attawandaron Road, provides students with a basic "hands on" grounding in the methods and techniques used by archaeologists to recover data in the field, and an introduction to preliminary archaeological data processing in the laboratory. The goal is to provide students with basic skills that can be used in cultural resource management (CRM) or academic research contexts. The skills taught will be applicable in a variety of contexts, but we will be focusing on archaeological methods and techniques commonly applied in Southern Ontario.

Your application will be reviewed by the Instructor and the Undergrad Chair of the Department of Anthropology. If approved, your registration in this course will be processed by the Department of Anthropology. If you decide not to take the course, you must drop the course by on-line course registration as well as notify the Instructor and the Department that you have dropped the course, so that your place may be replaced with someone else.
