In a field course situation, such as that on which we will be embarking, students should be aware at all times that they are acting, effectively, as ambassadors of the University and that the University's Code of Student Conduct still applies to them. Further, since we will be living and travelling together for an extended period, students must know that any conduct that disrupts the operation of the field course, that threatens the safety of anyone in the group, or impinges on the academic experience and enjoyment of fellow field course members will not be tolerated.

Specifically, students participating in the field course will be expected to:

- Refrain from any behaviour that would contravene the Criminal Code of Canada or the criminal code of the visited country

- Refrain from any behaviour that endangers the personal safety of anyone, including themselves, involved in the field course

The undersigned has read, and agrees with, the above conditions. Failure to comply with these regulations may be grounds for immediate expulsion from the field course. In the event of expulsion, the undersigned agrees to waive any right to refunds and/or recourse to appeal.
