Ralph's research is in the areas of urban and medical anthropology, focusing on the themes of gangs, disability, masculinity, race, and popular culture. His books 'Renegade Dreams: Living Through Injury in Gangland Chicago' and 'The Torture Letters' examine aspects of the racialized existence of Black residents of Chicago.